Should teens join volunteer work regularly?

Nowadays, there are many volunteer works that teenagers can do, such as flag selling, visiting the elderly, participating in charity sale, sponsored run and charity concert etc.

Through doing volunteer works, we can help people who are in need, like the people who are homeless, hungry and disabled. I think teenagers should join volunteer work regularly. First, helping people can make us feel happy because we did something good.

Secondly, volunteering is great for our mental and even social health. We can think more positively, and we can make more new friends.

Thirdly, volunteering lets us see how the others experience the world and open our eyes to something new. The world is not as small as we think.

Besides volunteering in our community, we can also do volunteer work at school. This year I have been a prefect at school. Prefects are the role models of schoolmates. Through working as a prefect, I learn how to observe the school discipline and to be a responsible student.

Being a volunteer is not only about helping the others, we can also learn new many things. Therefore, teens should join volunteer work regularly!
